The first ‘Beka’ releases recorded in November 1905 and released in 1906 of the Indian repertoire were catalogued from No. 1415 to c. No. 1730, with about 330 titles being entered into the catalogue.

Recordings from the second tour in India during December 1906 were entered into the catalogue at about No. 20008 to c. No. 22024, the numerical run of the catalogue numbers having been re-organised into national blocks at the end of 1905.

Further recording sessions were organised in India over the next couple of years, which by 1910 had resulted in a large selection of about three thousand recordings in various Indian repertoires.

Originally the 8-inch “Beka Record”, the 10-inch “Beka Grand Record” and the 12-inch “Beka Master Record” selections were single-side recorded discs, and continued to be marketed as such.
